The session of the interstate commerce commission will begin in the district court room at half past nine o'clock this morning. At any rate the witnesses on behalf of the shippers' union have been notified to be present at that time without waiting for subpoenas. The members of the commission were expected to arrive in the city last night at midnight, it was reported at that time that they would not come in until early this morning. The members of the shippers' union were busy with their attorneys, Messrs. Baker and Bennett, yesterday, getting the evidence on the part of the complainants in shape for presentation.
